CALL FOR PAPERS

»Covid-19 and changes in politics and society«

The unexpected epidemics of Covid-19 that erupted in late 2019 and spread through the world in 2020, heavily influenced the conduct of political, economic and social relations. States, unprepared to a shock of such dimensions, in the first phase tried to find a quick solution to stop the spread of the virus. At that point, the economic, political, social, societal and psychological factors were treated as irrelevant. However, immediately after the first wave it became clear that the epidemics would not end in few months. A year and a half later and living in time of worldwide crisis, we are more than aware that the world and our everyday life has changed. Covid-19 has had an impact on numerous aspects of social life; in politics, we see new unorthodox approaches of political fight; the economic arena did not face such extensive monetary policy as in the last two years; societies are fragmenting into “dust of individuals”, mostly connected in/by their bubble. Finally, not only social and societal patterns have been changing, but also cultural ones – wearing a mask is becoming the new reality.

All these changes call for a deep investigation on how societies, economies and political approaches have been changing and dealing with the challenges of the new reality in different states and/or cultures.

The high-impact scientific journal Annales – Series Historia et Sociologia is opening a CFP for submission of original scientific articles covering various aspects related to the Covid-19 pandemics. The Journal hereby invites academics and researchers from Europe and beyond and from different academic disciplines, particularly (but not exclusively) from the fields of social sciences and humanities, to submit their proposals. All manuscripts presenting new findings and bringing new knowledge to the topic are welcome.

The CFP is divided into three timeslots during which manuscripts should be submitted:

- a) timeslot 1: the author(s) should submit the manuscript by 31 December 2021.
If the manuscript passes a rigorous peer-review, you can expect publication in issue 1, 2 or 3 in 2022;
- b) timeslot 2: the author(s) should submit the manuscript by 31 March 2022.
If the manuscript passes a rigorous peer-review, you can expect publication in issue 3 or 4 in 2022;
- c) timeslot 3: the author(s) should submit the manuscript by 31 July 2022.
If the manuscript passes a rigorous peer-review, you can expect publication in issue 1 or 2 in 2023.
